Stakeholder Toolkit: Ohio's 6-week abortion ban
Last Updated: July 2022

Dear Reader:

Thank you for your interest in OPEN's Stakeholder Toolkit about Ohio's 6-week abortion ban. The goal of this toolkit is to provide you with accessible, engaging, evidence-driven information about topics of interest to our community.

Please use the resources contained in this toolkit as you see fit. If appropriate, we ask you tag or link to OPEN when sharing content from us. Have a question about the toolkit? Let us know by emailing open@osu.edu. Thank you!

Continued thanks for all you do,

Alison & Danielle
Co-Principal Investigators of OPEN

How to use this toolkit:
1) Open the files and check them out!
2) Share the one-pager over email or in-person (whatever makes the most sense for you).
3) Share the images and accompanying text (as seen below) over social media, tagging OPEN when appropriate (we're on Twitter @openreprohealth). Note! The infographic image can be cropped into three separate square images.
4) Additional maps illustrating abortion restrictions in Ohio and surrounding states, as well as a detailed policy brief about the 6-week abortion ban can be viewed and downloaded on OPEN's Post-Roe Ohio webpage.

Image 1_Doctors, not patients
In Ohio, the six-week abortion ban criminalizes doctors who provide abortions, but not people who have them. @openreprohealth

Image 2_6 weeks
Many people don't even know they're pregnant by 6 weeks. Even for those who do know, abortions have often happened after 6 weeks. Factors outside a patient's control impact the ability to have an early abortion: structural racism, financial hardship, and more. @openreprohealth
